DATE/TIME	NOTES:
3-24-22	I saw this on the News and I feel that Molina should cover these services for people. Pain management is a service that is necessary for helping people have a better quality of life. What these big insurances dont understand is that covering these services would keep people, who they are in pain off the "street" purchasing illegal drugs to help them. Molina gets their money from "the working class" and also gov't perks. IF Molina would cover these services it would tremendously help with the Opioid crisis because it would be controlled and also keep people off the "street purchasing" in turn, decrease OD's. Eventually putting illegal substances off of business.
